

“THE MARKET TRUMPS THE STATE” or,
How the Minority Israeli Palestinians Navigates Within The Jewish State

Alex Weingrod
Emeritus Professor of Anthropology,
Ben Gurion University of the Negev

The fact that the Israeli state has implemented policies that discriminate against the Israeli Palestinian minority has been demonstrated in many studies. Drawing upon recent anthropological field research, this paper indicates ways in which, despite systematic inequalities and discrimination, some rural as well as urban-based Israeli Palestinians have been able to build meaningful life-careers.